Federal law enforcement officers in Minneapolis were "doing an enforcement operation" Wednesday morning when their vehicle got stuck in the snow, Homeland Security Secretary Kristi Noem said at a news conference Wednesday afternoon.

Noem says agents called for others to help remove the vehicle from the snow, when protesters arrived and were "preventing them from leaving the scene."

"They were returning back to headquarters, I believe, to start a new operation," Noem tells reporters, adding that they "had just completed one."

Local resident Lynette Reini-Grandell told ABC News that a number of neighbors were standing watch as students were being dropped off at nearby Richard E. Green Central Park Elementary School, due to reports of ICE activity in the neighborhood.

The Department of Homeland Security had previously announced an increase in immigration enforcement activity in the Minneapolis area.

9:35:05 a.m. (local time)

2 minutes before the shooting

Renee Nicole Good's Honda Pilot is stopped diagonally on Portland Avenue while at least four cars pass perpendicularly, according to video footage recorded by Reini-Grandell.

The passenger side front window is closed while the rear window is mostly open. Seconds later, at least three federal agents wearing masks are seen walking toward the Honda Pilot, as bystanders can be heard whistling and yelling at officers.

9:36:51 a.m.

22 seconds before the shooting

A woman who would later identify herself as Good's partner stands behind the Honda Pilot and appears to question a federal agent, according to video obtained by local attorney Daniel Suitor that was shared with ABC News. The woman and the agent appear to be holding up cellphones filming each other.

The Honda Pilot can be seen moving very slightly forward while the woman and agent are behind the car. The vehicle then stops.

This agent would subsequently move alongside the Honda Pilot's passenger side and position himself in the front of the car.

9:36:58 a.m.

15 seconds before the shooting

A Ford Explorer with California license plates that had been on the side of Portland Avenue can be seen on video pulling out onto the street. A different video shows Good's driver-side front window is open, and she appears to gesture for the Ford Explorer to pass in front of her Honda Pilot, which it does.

Good continues to wave her hand from left to right after the Ford passes as two other officers are seen pulling up in an unmarked Nissan Titan pickup truck with flashing red and blue lights. They stop in the middle of the street.

9:37:08 a.m.

5 seconds before the shooting

The two officers in the Nissan Titan are seen on video exiting their vehicle. They approach the Honda Pilot, ordering Good to "get out of the car." While they are approaching, the Honda Pilot is put in reverse. The officer who emerged from the driver's side of the Nissan Titan puts his left hand on the bottom of the Honda Pilot's driver-side front window and his right hand on the door handle, appearing to try to open the door. His hands remain in that position while the Honda Pilot backs up a few feet, with the front wheels of the car pointed to the left as the car backs up.

The federal agent who was walking behind the Honda Pilot then moves alongside the right of the car so he is standing to the front-left of the vehicle.

As the Honda Pilot then begins to move forward, the wheels begin to turn to the right, away from where the ICE agent is standing.

In new video taken by the agent who shot Good and obtained by ABC News on Jan. 9, Good can be seen turning her vehicle's steering wheel to the right, away from the agent, just over one second before the first shot is fired.

The moment of the shooting is captured in at least four videos verified by ABC News. Three eyewitness videos emerged on the day of the shooting. A fourth, taken by the officer who shot Good, was obtained by ABC News on Jan. 9.

With his right hand on his drawn firearm, the federal agent's left hand is still on his phone, with both pointed at the Honda Pilot. He fires the first shot through the front windshield toward Good at 9:37:13 a.m., according to ABC News' metadata analysis.

About fourth-tenths of a second after the first shot, as the car continues to move forward, a second shot is heard.

It is difficult to see exactly what happens as the Honda Pilot passes the agent who opened fire. DHS Secretary Noem told reporters the agent was struck by the vehicle.

The federal agent remains upright and can then be seen on the left of the passing vehicle, facing the driver's side door. The sound of a third gunshot then rings out.

The time between the first shot and second shot is 399 milliseconds, with 299 milliseconds between the second and third shots, ABC News' analysis shows. There are three shots in total that can be heard on camera.

9:37:55 a.m.

Moments after the shooting

Three seconds after the shooting, the Honda Pilot crashes into a parked car on the side of Portland Avenue, video footage shows. It then inches off the side of the one-way street, into the snow near a tree. The woman who later identified herself as Good's partner rushes to the Honda Pilot. The federal agent who shot Good is also seen walking toward the car.

The agent is then seen on video walking back after looking at the driver's side of the vehicle, as a bystander is heard yelling "shame." The agent can be heard saying "call 911." The woman later identified as Good's partner can subsequently be seen kneeling into the Honda Pilot. It's not clear from the video what Good's condition is at that moment.

9:42:03 a.m.

Good remains in her car

Minutes after Good is shot, she remains inside the Honda Pilot, video footage shows. Bystanders plead with DHS agents to let a man identified as a physician check on Good. The agents refuse, saying they have their own medics and that EMS personnel are on the way.
